

Once upon a time I was playing outside then all of a sudden I turned into a very tiny raindrop and it was also storming really hard outside. I'm telling you about what all happened that day. First of all as soon as I turned into a raindrop it was frightening! I had no clue what to do until something really strange happened. Another raindrop was falling from the sky with me and that raindrop started talking to me. She said that since I was knew in the raindrop group, I might want to try jumping on top of something just before I hit the ground. I thought about it and then decided that since she had been a raindrop longer than I had, I probably should take her advice. Anyways who knows if I take her advice it might come in handy one day. Well, I took her advice and it worked. As soon as I jumped off a chair on the ground I went straight back up and into the air. "What" where am I? Since I didn't know where I was I decided to go and try to find that one raindrop that had given me that wonderful advice. But, the only thing wrong with that was that I didn't know her name. So I went all around "where ever I was" asking people if they remembered me. Some of them were dizzy from falling or something because when I asked them if they remembered me they said all yeah I know you. Your that raindrop off of the coke for raindrops commercial. I said no that's not me! It took me all day but I finally found that one raindrop, turns out that she was at the mall shopping for a raincoat to wear because she had heard on the radio that there was an eighty percent chance of rain. After she told me that I quickly asked her where we were at and she said, where in the world do you think we are? Then I said I'll get no idea where in the world we could possibly be. She then said that we were in a cloud. Then I thought and said, that does make since. She said that the only thing wrong is that there's no way out. Then I said that's ok I do really like it here. That!
